RISKS

- Contingent convertible bonds (Cocos) are a type of contingent hybrid securities that under normal circumstances behave like debt securities, but which can be converted into equity securities or subject to write-downs. A write-down means that the bond's principal (Cocos) will be written down in whole or in part.
- Some high-yield bonds are highly speculative and carry proportionately greater risks than higher-quality securities. They are also more likely to default and are less liquid.
- To the extent that the Fund invests a large proportion of its assets in a limited number of sectors, industries or issuers, or within a limited geographical area, its level of risk may be higher than that of a fund that invests in a broader universe.
- The Fund may invest in instruments, such as derivatives, which may not meet their commitments in the future, exposing the relevant sub-funds to financial losses.
- Emerging markets are less stable than developed markets and therefore carry higher risks, including market, liquidity, currency and interest rate risks, as well as the risk of increased volatility.
- Stock prices can fluctuate significantly as they depend on the overall economic and political situation.
- The value of investments in bonds and other debt securities or derivatives may rise or fall significantly due to fluctuations in interest rates.
- The Fund invests in other UCITS / UCIs (undertakings for collective investment in transferable securities or savings), may be subject to additional investment fees, which may further erode any profits.
- REITs are exchange-traded entities where the underlying investments are primarily investments in real estate, which is generally less liquid than some other asset classes such as stocks, which can be reflected in wider spreads between supply and demand.

INTERVIEW WITH THE PORTFOLIO MANAGER

MARCO PIRONCINI

- Executive Vice President, Chief Investment Officer and Portfolio Manager at Pioneer Investments, a Victory Capital investment franchise.
- Lead Portfolio Manager >30 years experienced

onemarkets Fund

1. WHAT MAKES THIS FUND UNIQUE?

- The portfolio manager believes a diversified, long-term investment approach combined with dynamic asset allocation, could provide investors with both income and modest capital appreciation over time. He also believes that the pursuit of higher levels of income should not compromise risk management in our strategy over time.
- As an income solution, the portfolio seeks income producing assets trading at compelling valuations.

2. HOW DO YOU BUILD THE PORTFOLIO?

- The first step of the investment process is developing a strategic asset allocation by defining the income relevant sub-asset classes. The granularity in which the strategy defines these sub-asset classes can provide unique opportunities to the portfolio. This allows management the ability to be calculating and build out new positions in assets previously unowned and exit assets as fundamentals change.
- The second step in the investment process is portfolio construction, which includes the selection of sectors and securities. When it comes to stock selection, each member of the portfolio management team is specialised by asset class and works with global fundamental research analysts to select what they believe are the most suitable investment ideas to generate income.
- Tactical asset allocation and hedging framework is used to manage short and intermediate term risk exposures.

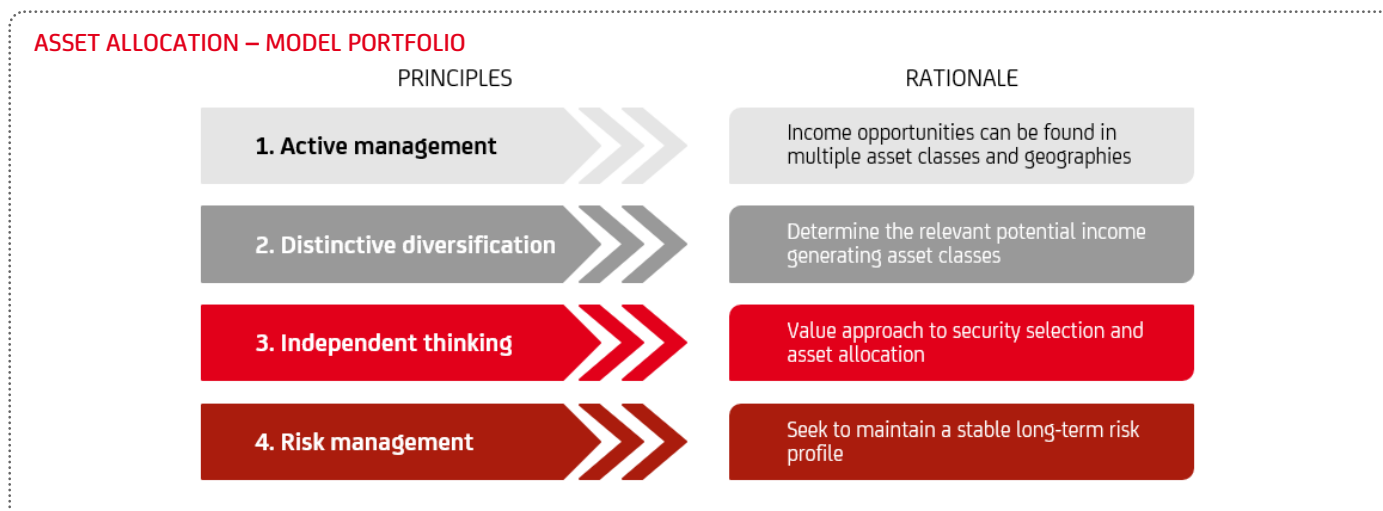

3. HOW DOES THE SELECTION PROCESS WORK?

- In selecting financial instruments, the portfolio management team considers the potential level of income that a security could provide in addition to its fundamental characteristics, competitive position, and valuation. It is in security selection that the team most effectively seeks to capture anomalies between the intrinsic value of a security over time and its current market price.

4. HOW IS THE INVESTMENT PROCESS?

- The Fund follows a three-step investment process with the goal of providing investors with a high level of income and capital appreciation as a secondary objective. The first step is developing a strategic asset allocation focused on defining the areas where we believe there is an attractive opportunity for income and capital appreciation. In the second step, the team constructs a portfolio of securities based on the asset allocation guidelines. In the last step, we utilise tactical asset allocation and hedging strategies in an effort to eliminate unintended risks and reduce volatility.

5. OUTCOME-ORIENTED SOLUTION
